Guest Speaker

Communicating Science through Multimedia Platforms

Friday, March 10th, 2017 • 10:00—11:00 am • Farnsworth Pavilion

Oludurotimi Adetunji, Ph.D., Associate Dean of the College for Undergraduate Research and Inclusive Science and director of the Science Cartoons Program (SciToons) at Brown University. Dr. Adetunji runs the SciToons program at Brown University, which is a new approach for communicating scientific research and concepts to a broad audience via storytelling, animation, high-quality multimedia, and art. He will share how SciToons projects engage both science and non-science students. He will describe the science behind each story, the artistic methods needed to illustrate ideas, and the creative process of storytelling as a powerful tool for broadening science impact nationally and internationally.
